

Language requirements

Required German and English Skills

In order to enrol in your degree programme, you need to meet certain language requirements.

In case you have not yet provided proof of the language skills required according to the letter of admission, the following applies:

Proof of language of instruction (German for German-language degree programmes and English for English-language degree programmes):

This proof must be uploaded to the Primuss portal by the time of enrolment, or at the latest before the start of the semester (by 30 September for the winter semester / by 14 March for the summer semester). Usually, proof of at least German level B2 is required for German-language degree programmes and at least English level B2 for English-language degree programmes.

Please independently review the specific requirements of your degree programme at: <https://www.th-deg.de/en/apply#language-requirements>

Proof of German language proficiency for English-language degree programmes:

German language skills required in English-language degree programmes can be acquired in the course of the degree programme. The relevant proof must be submitted by the end of the degree programme at the latest.

Please observe the specific requirements of your degree programme:

<https://www.th-deg.de/en/apply#language-requirements>

If you fail to meet this obligation by the deadline, your admission to our university must be revoked retroactively.

I hereby acknowledge that I accept the language requirements applicable to my degree programme. I have read and understood the above language regulations and the associated implications for admission and will submit the missing documents within the deadline.
